No Surcease in Sight

Six dogs were killed, struck by cars on the Monterey Peninsula last month, according to the report of the S.P.C.A.

Since it is reasonable to assume that the cars didn't enter the yards or pens in which the dogs were confined to run them down, the conclusion is forced upon us that the dogs were running loose in the streets in violation of the rabies quarantine. It is hardly within the law of averages that every loose dog was struck by a car. In fact, one tenth of one per cent of them coming to such an end would be a large proportion. Apparently, then, a good many dogs were running loose on the Peninsula at one time or another during the past month and, as there has been no noticeable increase in activity on the part of the S.P.C.A., they are probably still running loose. One of them with rabies can postpone for months the lifting of the wearisome quarantine that is almost a year old now.

It appears that if the quarantine is not to drag on indefinitely, dog owners who comply with the regulations will have to take a more active part in its enforcement. This they can do by reporting loose dogs when they see them, and by insisting on more rigid patroling on the part of the S.P.C.A. —Wilma B. Cook

Council Rules on Tree Requests, Street Complaints

Pine trees, mud and sand were the main issues under consideration at the special meeting of the city council Wednesday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock.

Miss Olive Swezey's request for the removal of a pine tree near her residence on Dolores and 4th was denied on the ground that the tree is not dead as alleged. Mrs. C. B. Van Neil, Camino and Fourth was granted permission to trim out some dead branches of a pine tree in front of her house provided the work was done under the supervision of the street superintendent.

Clarkson Crane, Oakland, asked that a dead pine threatening to fall on the garage on his property at Santa Lucia avenue be removed, and the council, which had inspected the tree previously, ordered the street dpartment to attend to its removal. Mrs. William A. Campbell is the tenant.

Mrs. Ida McPhillips requested that the street department remove the sand that gathered in the street by her hotel entrance. Mrs. Katherine F. Overton entered a complaint about the muddy condition of Junipero street between Ocean and Seventh. The council observed that little could be done about Junipero street until after the war when materials are again available.

The ordinance granting a raise in pay from $40 to $50 to the city treasurer was given a second reading by title only.

$60,000 Building Fund Is Plan of School Trustees

Tentative plans to set aside $12,000 a year for the next five years for a post war building fund were made at a special meeting of the school board called last week.

In this way a total of $60,000 could be raised to provide for the building of new classrooms and possibly for the acquiring of additional land at Sunset. No more building may be done on the present site at Sunset the state inspector has informed the board. Crowding can be relieved there by moving the seventh grade up to the high school making the latter a six year school, but the board estimated that in four or five years there would again be need of greater class room facilities at the grammar school and showed a disposition in favor of acquiring land even though the seventh grade should be moved up to the high school.

The board favored the establishment of the fund by a rise of 6c on the tax rate for 1944 and 1945, an increase that will be wiped out in 1946 as then two old Sunset bonds will be paid off, eliminating 7c from the tax rate.

A similar accumulative building fund was set up by the Monterey school board.

Tilly Polak Sports Director At Mission Ranch

Tilly Polak will be in charge of a recreation project shortly to be launched by the Mission Ranch Club, with facilities provided for numerous outdoor as well as indoor sports. Plans include use of the outdoor swimming pool, tennis courts, archery range, and equipment is to be installed for shuffleboard and similar open air games. Not only will there be an opportunity for horseback riding, but during the spring and summer months pack trips into the nearby mountains will be arranged.

Headquarters for the indoor sports will be located in the large badminton court at the Ranch where ping pong tables are to be set up and a game room provided for chess, checkers and backgammon. A coke and sandwich bar will be among the new installations.

Miss Polak brings to her post as sports director for the Mission Ranch Club not only a deep understanding of Carmel and its inhabitants, but a wide and diversified background. Born and educated in Holland, she embarked following the last war upon three years of world travel during which she spent much of her time in the Dutch East Indies, in Australia, lived for six months in the Fiji Islands and covered most of the terrain now familiar to our embattled forces. In 1921, after living for six months in Canada, she came to Carmel, where her first venture was a tea shop in what is now the Tevis home near Carmel Mission.

The interest which was shown in many of the objets d'art she had picked up in the course of her wanderings inspired Miss Polak to open her first shop here, in the following year, located on Ocean avenue midway between Dolores and San Carlos. In 1925, after Edward Kuster had built his Golden Bough Theatre, she moved to the corner of Ocean avenue and Monte Verde street, where for seventeen years the Tilly Polak shop continued to be a mecca for all who sought rare and lovely bits of handcraft from all over the world, authentic antiques, art works and decorative furnishings. Frequently her shop was dedicated to one-man exhibits of painting and sculpture, designed to encour-

Droolsome Prizes For This Year's Kite Festival

This year's kite festival set for March 25 is to be extra special big and whopping with perfectly droolsome prizes such as (move in with the ears, girls) the latest Frank Sinatra record for the prettiest kite entered in the high school and eighth grade girls' class, and something simply super for the high school boys and 8th grade class in high flying to be announced next week which of course lifts the kite festival right out of the strictly from rompers category and makes it for everybody. There's even to be a prize for the old folks, 18 years and over.

To make sure this festival is going to make the archives, Ernest Calley has appointed a committee of Carmel citizens who you don't catch cooking on the back burner: Mayor P. A. McCreery, Clayton Neill, Police Officer Frank Hay and Lloyd Weer.

There's to be a committee of high school and eighth grade students, and a Sunset school committee made up of brain stormers and personality blitzers, which are being appointed now and whose names will be announced here next week.

Report of Cohen Wounded Erroneous, 2 Others Recovering

A wire from the U. S. War Department, received early this week by Mrs. Sidney Cohen of San Carlos and 13th street, brought welcome correction of a previous report that her husband, Captain Sidney Cohen, attached to the medical corps, had been wounded while participating in the Kwajalein campaign.

Cablegrams and letters have been received from their husbands by Mrs. Joseph Mudry, who lives with her two little daughters, Betty and Joan, at 805 Junipero street, Pacific Grove, and by Mrs. P. C. Murphy of Junipero and Fifth, Carmel, giving assurance that Captain Mudry and Lieutenant Murphy, also medical officers attached to the unit taking part in the Kwajalein attack, and listed this week as wounded in action, are alive and making progress toward recovery.

Committee Appointed For Red Cross Drive Starting March 1

The Red Cross War Fund Drive gets under way here Wednesday, March 1, to raise the $25,000 set as Carmel's quota.

"It is $6,100 greater than last year," chairman S. A. Trevvett said, "but the need is also greater."

Headquarters for the drive, which is to be conducted as a door to door campaign, are in the building on the west side of Dolores south of Ocean avenue.

Mrs. William M. Dekker has been appointed city director for the drive, with the following committee: Miss O. B. Haseltine, Miss K. G. Prewett, Mrs. Gladys Johnston, Mrs. S. F. B. Morse, Mrs. Vera Peck Millis, Mrs. E. F. Morehouse, Miss Caroline Pickit, Mrs. R. R. Wallace, Mrs. T. J. Williams, Mr. Wm. H. Burnham, Jr., Mr. Stuart Haldorn, Mr. Raymond Hornby, Mr. Whitney Palache.

News Reel Shows Local Boy Arriving At Overseas Port

His many friends were delighted to catch a clear, easily recognizable close-up of Maurice Grimshaw in the newsreel shown at the Carmel Theatre last Thursday evening, waving gaily to them as he disembarked in England from an Army transport. Grimshaw, the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Grimshaw of Mission and Fourth street, is a graduate of Sunset school and Monterey high, where he was a star track athlete.

He entered the service on September 11, 1940, as a radio specialist, taking his basic training at Camp Roberts. From there he was transferred to Fort Lewis, then to Elsegundo Beach, where he was attached to the Coast Guard. After further training at Fort Lewis, he trained for several months in the desert, then prior to being sent overseas, he was stationed at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri. Now he is driving a jeep and engaged in active radio service with the U. S. Army in England. He spent a short leave in Carmel last October, accompanied here by his wife, the former Ila Gardner, who with her son Patrick, now makes her home in Carmel.

F. Hefling Announces Candidacy

Frank Hefling, for twelve years a Carmel resident, who by his participation in Carmel theatricals and Abalone League activities qualifies for the honorary degree of T. O. C. (True Old Carmelite) yesterday came out from behind the counter at Carleton's Grocery long enough to tell the Pine Cone-Cymbal that he is a candidate for city councilman in the April 11 election.

Asked how he felt about footpaths and a swimming pool for Carmel as post war projects, Hefling said that there might be a few isolated cases where footpaths are needed and the town would benefit by their presence, but "I just don't picture Carmel with a network of footpaths" he chuckled. "I'd like to see the town kept as it is as much as possible so as to protect the interests of the people who have come here to live because it is a town for homes. The business man has his investment here too, and deserves reasonable consideration. I think a medium course can be kept."

A swimming pool would be a very good thing, he thinks, if it were built in connection with a recreation center for 'teen age boys and girls, which he believes is genuinely needed in the town. Such a center is about the limit of post war construction as he sees it. He believes that any other needs of the town can be satisfied through the use of existing facilities, and is not enthusiastic over an ambitious building program.

Hefling first brought his family here to live in 1932 because he'd "fallen in love with the town" when he had visited here with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hefling who had moved here several years earlier. He worked at L. S. Slevin's Stationery store on Ocean avenue, later at Ewig's grocery. Almost immediately his talent as an actor was in demand by the various drama groups of the town. His first part he recalls with amusement was that of Bruno, Captain of the Guard in the Ivory Door, Forest Theater production in which Hal Garrott played the king.

He recalls parts in Martin Flavin's Amaco in which Lincoln Steffin, Jimmy Hopper, Frank Sheridan—all the old "gang" participated, in The Inspector General, and a dozen others. His reminiscences range through the history of Carmel drama for the past ten

Judge Baugh Sets Wednesday for Von Urban Decision

Judge Ray Baugh will render his decision in the Rudolph Von Urban case at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning, March 1, in the council chambers at Few Memorial building he announced yesterday afternoon.

Von Urban, county psychologist, charged with practicing medicine without a license, was brought to trial early in December. At the close of the hearing in January, Judge Baugh asked counsel to submit briefs rather than offer verbal arguments. Final brief for the prosecution were submitted two weeks ago.

Dr. Sulit Tells How Filipinos "Collaborate"

How the Filipinos, both citizens and officials, are conducting themselves in the present crisis in their country was explained by Dr. Estella Sulit at the Sunset school auditorium on Tuesday evening. This was the second in the series of eight programs offered by the adult school.

The speaker began with a comparison of Carmel and Baguio, the beautiful summer resort high in the mountains of her homeland, even the pines here are of the same variety, and the stormy weather of her visit added to the likeness, for Baguio means storm, although the locality is far from perennially stormy. Mrs. Sulit added that she felt at home not only in Carmel, but in all this friendly land.

Her native country consists of 7091 islands, many of them very small; Mindanao, a large island, contains the largest city in area in the world, Zamboanga. The Filipinos, despite the oppression they suffered, recognize their debt to Spain in culture and religion, as they form the only Christian nation in the Orient. Mrs. Sulit believes that the great distance from Europe and the slowness of travel were responsible for much of the misrule, since Spain could not keep a check on her colonial officials.

When the United States took over the Philippines in 1898 she brought an entirely new colonial policy to the world: to educate and train the people for self-government instead of to exploit the country and enrich herself. At first the Filipinos did not realize and appreciate this purpose, and for three years they resisted the Americans as they had the Spanish conquerors. When realization came, they began wholeheartedly to cooperate, and in little more than a decade most of the officials in the government and the teachers in the schools were natives of the islands. In virtually all respects the country was self-governing when the Japanese attacked the islands.

The Filipinos throughout their history have aspired to independence, and as everyone knows, they fought bravely beside the American troops against the invaders. The Japanese, wishing to win their cooperation, promised them freedom and independence of a sort, but the people were not really deceived, for their experiences with Japansee who have settled in the islands through the years have not been of the happiest. Other nationals have mingled with them in friendly cooperation, but not the Nipponese. However, conditions have imposed an appearance of collaboration, but Mrs. Sulit believes that her people are only making the best of a bad matter, and biding their time and awaiting the expulsion of the conqueror.

They have a way of meeting a bad situation. One Filipino who with his horse was doing work ordered by the Japanese was accused of collaborating.

"Oh," he said, "I'm not collaborating, but my horse is."

At another time a Japanese soldier with a pet monkey boarded a streetcar, although it is against the rules to take animals onto a streetcar. The motorman, looking around, refused to start the car, and a tense situation threatened.

"Oh," called out a Filipino passenger, "if you're going to let the father ride, why not let the son ride too?" Amid the laughter the car was started, and the Japanese soldier, not having understood the words, gratefully thanked the Filipino!

Though the Japanese fliers dropped leaflets over the country offering rewards for collaboration, seeking compliance of the people in overthrowing the Americans, the people will welcome the return of the force that will restore their government.

"That is the hope of my country," concluded the speaker, "and I bring you that appeal. I owe all to American teachers and American institutions."

Dr. Sulit took her A. B. and M.A. degrees from the University of the Philippines, engaged in educational work there and later began the practice of law, and more recently has been admitted to the practice of law before the U. S. Supreme Court. Her talk greatly interested the audience, which was rather small, owing to the inclement weather. F. L. McClain, adult school head, presided and introduced the speaker.

Red Cross

By HELEN A. FIELD

The Production Room of Carmel Chapter of American Red Cross, having completed the last quota on time, is now beginning work on its spring quota. Again the work will be entirely for hospitalized service men for whom the following articles are to be made: 50 bathrobes, 50 bedjackets, 200 bedside bags, 500 housewives, 500 kit bags, 100 pajamas, 100 pneumonia jackets, 500 pairs of slippers and 250 wash cloths. Imagine the comfort provided for the men as a result of this work: If one goes a little further into the realm of speculation, it is interesting to try to estimate the large numbers of garments and useful articles made in production rooms of hundreds of Red Cross Chapters large and small scattered over the land. One is again impressed by the importance of supporting the Red Cross organization by word and deed.

We must remember, too, that Production Room achievement is only one of many parts of the contribution Red Cross is making to the health and comfort of the men and women who are giving the best years of their lives to the service of our country. Surely those of us who are staying in relative safety at home can do no less than help the Red Cross effort in every way possible, especially in March which the President has proclaimed Red Cross Month.

For our knitters there is a limited supply of yarn just received. Shortage of yarn has delayed our full quota but more is expected soon.

Carmelites Witness Biggest Potato Bake In Monterey's History

By MALCOLM WHITMAN, JR.

A fire of unknown origin gutted and collapsed the building of the Smith Produce Company at Del Monte and English streets in East Monterey early Friday morning, last week. Mr. Kenneth Smith of Carmel, drawing up to his place of business at 6:15 a.m. found the oscillating lamps of the fire engine playing on smoke from the building. The fire was by then being drenched by streams of water from hoses drawing from Laguna Grande, 1700 feet away, under the direction of Fire Chief Al Grube of the Seaside Fire Department, but had previously flamed high endangering a nearby dwelling.

First noticed by Mr. Anthony Slapkus, who telephoned the fire department from the Highway Transport Company office across English street, and later directed use of the transport trucks in towing the produce company trucks out of danger, the fire appeared to have originated in the office of the Market building and spread rapidly to total consumption of the facade on Del Monte avenue. This destruction later exposed to passersby the mounded remains of a carload of Klamath area potatoes awaiting distribution on the Peninsula. Mrs. Lourdes B. Bettencourt, arriving at 8:00 a.m., found the two cash registers she was accustomed to keeping in order masses of twisted metal and the equipment of the office a total loss. Damage was estimated at over $7,000. The flames having consumed the entire fixed stock and equipment of the company. Early customers, among them Mr. and Mrs. M. Barbier of Carmel's Sun Deck Market, were greeted with the sight of charred remains instead of intended purchases, and Mr. Arthur Pina, arriving from San Jose with a truckload of produce at 9:10 a. m. found no means of repository for it.

Heavy metal hardware alone survived the heat during the approximately one hour and a half that traffic was diverted on the highway, and even persons passing in aircraft found cause to comment on the untimely baking of so many potatoes at once. Mrs. Benjamin Aiello, of East Monterey, who lost fish stock and store installations and her daughter her purse and schoolbooks in the retail section of the building, turned the most wearily away from the scene after the final smoldering beneath the flooring had been extinguished.

Register Now Is Plea of League State President

"How the League of Women Voters can help the citizen" was discussed by Mrs. James Scarborough, state president of the organization, before members of the Peninsula chapter on February 17 at the home of Mrs. Karl Rendtorff. The speaker explained that such help is for all citizens, regardless of sex or political affiliation. But with so many men away in the armed forces, women now constitute 55 per cent of registered voters in the United States, and the least they can do is try to preserve the kind of government we are fighting for.

The league can awaken in the citizenry a sense of responsibility toward the government, inducing individuals to register and vote intelligently, to the end that there be no breakdown in the democratic process in the country. In California almost 4,000,000 names are on the register, but as not all these persons voted at the last two general elections, many will have to register again in order to keep the right to vote. April 6 is the final registration date if one is to cast a ballot for congressional and legislative candidates.

Those who are absent from their homes on the election date should arrange in ample time for absentee ballots, in order not to lose their votes; this is true for both the primary and the final election. There are many non-residents in California who should vote by absentee ballot, if the laws of their states provide for such voting. A letter of inquiry to the registrar of voters of the home county will bring the needed information.

In order to vote intelligently, everyone should study the candidates and their qualifications, and the issues before the people at this time, said Mrs. Scarborough. A public meeting at which the candidates may speak is a means of gaining information, but the citizen needs to know also the duties and qualifications requisite for the various offices. The state committees of the league carry on considerable non-partisan research on state and national issues, and make the information available not only for its members, but for general distribution.

Among the most important national problems confronting the people are cooperation with other nations after the war; the work of relief under the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Association (UNRRA); the many conditions that will arise in building and maintaining a real peace. The national research groups of the league offer leaflets containing concise information on the various problems as they develop. For example, there have been some 450 peace plans put forward by various groups and individuals. While the decision rests with the U. S. Senate, the expressed wishes of the voters will have great influence.

Members at the meeting were urged to avail themselves of the various leaflets of information on domstic and foreign relations problems offered at nominal cost and distribute them to non-members to promote a wide understanding of questions before Congress at the present time. Among these are studies on grade labeling that have been well worked out. facts on inflation and subsidies; information on voting. The speaker quoted the pertinent dictum:

"You register and vote now, or you take the other fellow's choice then."

Mrs. Carl Voss, former president of the state league, as well as former head of the Peninsula organization, conducted the short business meeting which preceded the talk. Tea was served at the close. —L. L. T.

Audubon Audience See Pictures of Nudi-Branches

By PAULINE CARSWELL

A whole new world filled with amazing varieties of marine life was opened to the audience at the Pacific Grove Museum when Dr. Rolf Bolin of the Hopkins Martine Station of Stanford University showed his colored motion pictures Saturday, February 12 at the regular meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society.

Although the Audubon Society is primarily interested in birds, it is nevertheless concerned with the conservation of all wild life and it welcomed the opportunity to hear a talk on marine life. These same films, shown to the Audubon Society about a year ago, proved to be so popular that a return engagement was requested.

Part of the film was devoted to the brilliantly colored nudibranches. Some of them resembled miniature dragons with a strange rosette of exposed gills in the center of their backs. The various varieties were magenta colored, coral, purple and yellow, and one, a bright rosy pink, named for the Hopkins Marine Station, is called Hopkinsia. Nudi-branches means "naked gill" and refers to the exposed breathing apparatus appended to the creature's back.

The audience also saw a hermit crab exploring an uninhabited shell, when on finding that it was his proper size, quickly inserted his body in it. These little animals are the clowns of the tide pools. Another amusing crab camouflages itself by planting algae on its back so that it blends perfectly iwith its surroundings.

Other animals appearing in the movies were starfish, sea cucumbers, sea urchins, snails, worms, sea anemones, sand dollars, clams, jelly fish, and octopi. The pictures, with exception of one film by Dr. Bolin, were taken by Dr. and Mrs. John W. Robertson.

Mrs. Bishop Talks On Cutting Culture At Garden Club Meet

By FLORA HARTWELL, Chairman Garden Section

The gardens of Carmel will be gayer than ever this spring for on last Friday the members of the Garden Section of the Carmel Woman's Club listened to an inspiring talk on the propagation of seedlings and cutting at the home of Mrs. M. P. Colvin.

Mrs. James D. Bishop of the Pine View Nursery was the guest speaker. She proved herself a very fascinating and helpful instructor.

She has for many years studied the problems of floriculture under the guidance of her husband.

Mrs. Bishop brought with her material with which to demonstrate the best methods of rooting cuttings.

She showed how to select and prepare the cuttings; how to plant and care for them.

She said when seeds are sowed they should always be covered with paper or burlap until the tiny seedlings appar.

She also spoke of fertilizers, saying to use commercial fertilizers sparingly and that Vitamin B has been proven over-stimulating to plants. Like a shot in the arm, its beneficial effect is only temporary after which plants are exhausted.

Many questions were answered regarding individual garden problems.

Mrs. Colvin, the hostess for the afternoon has a charming home. She is an enthusiastic gardener and has received prizes for her artistic flower arrangments.

NEIKIRK REUNION

Mrs. John H. Neikirk returned to her home at Torres and Ninth street after spending five weeks with her parents in Vancouver, Canada, in time to welcome her son, Pfc. Gerald P. Ray, who will arrive on Sunday for a fifteen-day leave. Pfc. Ray of the U. S. Signal Corps has just completed a course in gunnery at Buckingham Field, Fort Meyers, Florida. His brother, George Neikirk, is now on active combat duty in Italy, flying a P-51.

are all the more eager to contribute worth while prizes so that this remaining Carmel tradition will continue as lusty and glorious as ever.

First contributor to the festival prize bag is Margaret Lial who offered this week the Frank Sinatra record and a boogy-woogy disc from her up-to-the-minute stock in her music store in Monterey. Ernest Calley has undertaken to make a turned bowl out of native bay wood for the winner in the adult class. Starting next week the Pine Cone will publish the prizes and their doners so that the prospective fliers, who will range in age from kindergarteners to grandpa, will have added inducement to get out the paste, paper, string and slats and get to work.

Fire Department Off to Roaring Start in January

Against only $132.50 fire loss for the entire year of 1943, the Carmel volunteer fire department had to chalk up $3850.00 damage in the first month of this year, according to Chief Vincent Torras' report to the city council last week.

Of three fires last month, two of them, a room at the Pine Inn which sustained $305.00 damage on January 5, and the Grigsby cottage on Mission between First and Vista, which sustained a $3500.00 loss, were delayed alarms.

The third fire, January 24 in the yard at the Mayfair Apartments, caused by hot ashes dumped in rubbage, resulted in no damage.

Cause of the Pine Inn fire was not determined. The Grigsby cottage fire was attributed to a burning cigarette left in the bedroom. The tenant had left the house for the day and the fire was well advanced before it was discovered by a neighbor and reported. Greatest loss was in personal belongings and furniture.

COLLIER IS GARDEN HEAD

Appointment of H. D. Collier, President of Standard Oil of California, to the industrial advisory committee of the National Victory Garden Institute was announced this week.

On request of the Federal government, the National Victory Garden Institute, a cross section of business, industrial and professional leaders, has assumed leadership in encouraging and assisting Victory Garden programs among industrial concerns.

STATE GUARD FIELD DAY

Company F, California State Guard, will have a day on the range Sunday, March 5, Capt. Claude Estill announced last week. He also reported that a recruiting program is under way under Sgt. Charles Walker, Carmel.

Meetings are held on Tuesday night at the armory across the street from the Monterey ball park. On Thursday non-commissioned officers' school meets. The Carmel Business Association and the Carmel Lions Club, along with other Peninsula organizations, have contributed recently to a fund to install lockers for the Co. F personnel.

age many a young artist or introduce one little known here.

During all these years Tilly Polak's interests were many sided, and her participation in the cultural life of the community an active and prominent one. She was early identified with the rise of the Carmel Music Society and served for a time on its board of directors. Always a drama enthusiast, she has been both patron and sponsor for many of the local ventures in this field.

In 1942 Miss Polak closed her shop on Ocean avenue and lived for a short while in Carmel Valley, then went south to make her home in Los Angeles. But the lure of Carmel proved too strong to resist, and last October she returned to the place where her many friends feel she decidedly belongs.

BUSINESS ASS'N. MEET

At the Carmel Business Association quarterly dinner meeting last week it was announced that the association had raised $17,000 in bonds on their "day" during the Fourth War Loan Drive.

In spite of the increase in membership dues, the number of members has increased, President Lafrenz reported. Following a report by Mrs. Ernest Morehouse on the teen age recreation project, the association voted its support. A post war planning committee headed by J. O. Handley was appointed to offer the Business Association's ideas on the subject to the city.

CARMEL MEN AT GILROY MEET

The Carmel contingent attending the Principals' meeting for the central coast district at Gilroy Wednesday night included J. W. Getsinger, F. L. McClain and Chief of Police Roy Fraties. J. R. McKillop, Al Davis, Frank P. Moorehead, Chief Fred Moore of Monterey, and A. B. Ingham of Pacific Grove also made the trip. Subject under discussion was the California Youth Authority and juvenile delinquency.

Office of Civilian Defense
Carmel, Calif.
February 14, 1944

To the members of Carmel Emergency Medical Unit:

It is with a sense of deep appreciation that the Carmel Civilian Defense Council extends to you personally the sincere thanks of this community for your part in making possible a satisfactory program for providing competent, adequate and dependable medical service in the event of an emergency that affects the physical welfare of the people.

You have devoted your time and interest to this program to prepare yourself to work cooperatively and have consolidated your forces into a trained group, and you have thereby exhibited your civic and patriotic spirit.

The type of service which you have volunteered to render is one that could possibly be required at any time and for a number of reasons, both of military and non-military origin. In return, your community recognizes and depends confidently upon your willingness and ability to furnish valuable service in the same way in which it regards its Police, Fire and other organized agencies. You are, no doubt, aware that the Medical Unit is counted upon in any emergency and is geared to work with any other relief or rescue agency.

The Council realizes that this letter is very secondary to the personal gratification to which you are entitled and to the sense of satisfaction at having given to the community a valuable and vital enthusiasm, but the Council and the community it serves would be remiss if it did not take this opportunity of expressing to you a proud and hearty "Thank You."

Very truly yours,
G. H. TAUBLES, M. D.
Chairman, Carmel Civilian Defense Council

This letter has been sent to as many of the persons who have taken part in the program of medical defense preparedness as appear on the roster on file. But it has been the unpleasant experience on former occasions that, for unavoidable reasons, names have a way of being omitted. So, it is the wish of the Council that any who should have received this letter and did not, will do us the favor of notifying the Civilian Defense headquarters in Carmel and permit us to rectify the omission and to add their names to the current files.

Another purpose to be served in making this letter public is that of letting the whole community know that a medical unit of our own townspeople is in readiness to afford substantial medical relief to victims of any disaster. This is an achievement disaster. This is an achievement of which Carmel can well be proud and expresses one of the highest forms of civic cooperation, the more so, because of the disturbed conditions under which this project has been brought to such a fine standard of efficiency. To phrase it somewhat differently, in spite of stress of war conditions and in spite of the many other war activities, such a substantial group have united and given a great deal of effort to bring this service to a fine state of competency, and, in addition, thereby to say that if trouble comes, we stand shoulder to shoulder, each to help the other.

One Lost—One Won

The lightweights dropped a tough one to lose last week when they met Gonzales. The boys tried plenty hard in spite of the fact that the Gonzales boys were fast and tricky. Both teams had a good defense. Art Templeman was high point man for Carmel and the Babes were barely nosed out by a score of 23-24.

At the beginning of the heavyweight game, the scoring was slow until the boys got warmed up and then they went on a scoring jag that left the Mustangs trailing 10 to 30 at the end of the first half.

In the last half the boys were still going strong with Dick Uzzell claiming high point credit with 16 points.

Coach Rudd of Carmel gave the second string a good workout and they did all right for themselves. By the time the final whistle blew, the Carmel Padres were on top with a score of 55-24.

The last league game will be played with Pacific Grove this week end at the Grove.

Marrs and McClain On Women's Club Program in Salinas

Mr. Frank L. McClain and Mr. David Marrs, teachers in Carmel high school, made a fine contribution to an interesting program given at the Salinas Women's club on Sunday afternoon, February 13th. The program was arranged by the Literature and Music section of the club under the chairmanship of Mrs. Roy Martello.

Mr. McClain talked delightfully about "Some Good Books on Music and Musicians." He is a concert pianist with fine training and has lived with music as a major interest. But his hobby is collecting and enjoying books about musicians.

American Music Students and Artists from 1869-1944 were made known and appreciated in four separate volumes; Music Study in Germany, by Alice Fay, 1869; Leschetizky As I Knew Him, by Ethel Newcomb, 1890; An American Musician's Story, by Olga Samaroff Stowkowski, 1890; Rise to Follow, by Albert Spalding, 1900-1944.

Two books of essays, one "Critical and Historical Essays," by Edward MacDowell and the other gay and charming "Music With a Feather Duster," by Elizabeth Mitchell were dipped into enough to tease his audience into reading them entirelv.

"Mozart," by Marcia Davenport; Men, Women and Tenors, by Frances Alda; Paderewski's Brahms, by Robert Schauffler; Life and Works of Beethoven, by John N. Burke; and "Dimitri Schostakovich," by Victor Seroff are biographies and autobiographies that tell not only of interesting people but throw much light on the history of their time and country.

"A Little Night Music," by Gerald Johnson, well known Baltimore journalist, and Playing the Piano for Pleasure by Charles Cooke in lighter vein. All these books prove that musicians write well. They have humor, wit and dramatic sense. A good point for further discussion was suggested in the question, "Is it better to be an active listener rather than an amateur performer?"

Mr. Marrs, who has been heard too little in Carmel, chose for his opening group four Sea Pieces of MacDowell's, giving the author's lyrics with each one. They were well interpreted and finely played. His Chopin group included the Etude in D Major, Waltz Opus 42 and Polonaise in A Flat. The Polonaise seemed particularly suit to Mr. Marrs' talent. For an encore Mr. Marrs played Rachmaninoff's Prelude in E Minor.

Before the program Mr. and Mrs. Roy Martello entertained sixteen guests at luncheon in their lovely home on California street. Those from Carmel were Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. McClain, Mrs. Jesusa Guidi Fremont, Mr. David Marrs and Vera Peck Millis.

Hitchhiking over the Sierra

From north to south the mountains stand there like a crinkled pie crust rim magnified a million times.

These are the snow-capped Cascades, ranging down through Washington and Oregon... the rugged peaks of the Sierra Nevada chain, which mark a towering boundary line between California and Nevada... and farther south, Sierra Madre, marching into Mexico.

To the west beyond the mountains lies America's Pacific Coast with its ship-filled harbors. Beyond the harbors —across the great ocean—lies Japan.

To MEET AND WHIP the Japanese in their home islands, great quantities of war equipment must be moved over the barrier mountains and down to ships.

Tanks, for example—like those pictured here hitchhiking over the Sierra. Cannon. Raw steel, and steel in various stages of fabrication. Machine parts. Trucks and motors. The railroad is the quickest way—the only practicable way—to transport these huge war tools from factory to shipping point.

ON ALL SOUTHERN PACIFIC ROUTES there are mountains to be climbed, for our lines cross more mountain ranges than any other railroad. S.P. routes converge on West Coast harbors from Chicago through El Paso on the Rio Grande, and through Ogden across Great Salt Lake... from New Orleans in the deep South and from the Pacific Northwest.

As any railroader can tell you, it takes more locomotives to move the heavy war trains up steep mountain grades. It requires experience and skill to bring them safely down.

Day and night our locomotives thunder through the passes. Whistles echo from peak to peak. Flanges sing against the rails. A railroad toiling in the mountains to bring through its great freight loads is one of the inspiring sights of this war.

IN ADDITION to military equipment, S.P. is moving trainloads of troops. Trainloads of materials for the West's new industries. Trainloads of foods, lumber, oil, copper and cattle to meet the needs of factories and families all across the country.

Because of our war load, and the diversion of equipment from civilian to military use, we are not able to take care of everyone who wants to travel these days.

When you take the train under present conditions—or even when you are unable to get that reservation you want—we hope you'll feel confident that the railroads, management and men, are working wholeheartedly to perform their war job. We hope you'll realize that the railroads are handling a tremendous load successfully and despite great difficulties.

Water Color and Pastel Show

By Patricia Cunningham

The current water color and pastel show at the Carmel Art Gallery will be on view until March 15. As usual, the members of the Art Association have contributed enough variety to satisfy the widest range of tastes, both in subject matter and technique. It is revealing to go into the gallery with several average observers and note their various reactions. Almost always, subject matter appeal is the number one stimulus, color comes next and lastly, technique. This, of course, in exact reverse to the order of the real importance of these qualities, but a perfectly normal reaction for the layman to have. It is the artist's job to realize this and cope with it accordingly. He, if he is sincere and knows his job, will protect the layman against his reliance on the too easy pleasure of subject matter and stir him to a deeper aesthetic experience and a more lasting joy in qualities of permanent value.

It happens too often that paintings are bought for a superficial appeal which time very quickly wears thin. Then the picture, quite properly, is relegated to the attic or cellar when its sentimental allure has palled on its owners and the only reaction they are left with is a supreme boredom. This is a deplorable waste of time and money, besides cheating the layman of one of the most desirable experiences in life, aesthetic pleasure. The layman cannot protect himself—not everyone has the time or inclination to be a connoisseur—but he can seek the advice of a reliable, trained judge to guide him. He knows very well that advertising "art" isn't art at all, although he doesn't know why. But no one would want an advertisement hanging in his living room. The true art quality is the direct opposite of this sort of pictorial journalism, so it would seem plausible that the buyer of paintings would avoid anything that affects him visually in a journalistic way. And since advertising art is pre-eminently descriptive of subject matter above all, the wise course is to be very wary of a painting where the appeal is mainly descriptive, because in the end, the result is weariness and distaste, which no one wants to invest in.

The cultural miracle of great paintings is well known. They create a pleasure which feeds on itself and becomes greater with time. There isn't enough money in the world to replace Leonardo's Last Supper or any of the great works of art which time and vandalism have taken from our civilization. But we can study and find out what made them so great and try to create new ones. And we can discourage the faddists and the charlatans and the inept, and banish them from the world of art.

To come back to the water color show with which this reviewer is concerned, let us see what is outstanding. Technically, Royden Martin's works are noteworthy, especially his soldier sitting on a cot. The subject is certainly important, but it is presented and interpreted by the soundest aesthetic means, space, color and drawing. It is in this way superior to his desert scenes which are a little thin in the foreground, although really beautifully rendered. Sam Colburn's two water colors, one beach scene and a valley scene, have a lovely lyrical transparency although somewhat lacking in spacial feeling and movement. However, he has shown in other paintings that he can achieve these qualities when he wants to.

Lucile Burtis, Joe Cannon and Bill Irwin have in common a staccato brilliance of effect which is vigorous and stimulating, although verging on harshness. Water color is not a medium by which to convey too much strength or precision. But Miss Burtis' handling of her color planes and compositional tensions is admirable, and

SONNETS TO THE CHANNEL ISLANDS OF CALIFORNIA

II ANACAPA (EVER-CHANGING)

Your black cliffs still invite the seagull home
Although your feet are trembling in the fog;
Your limbs are gashed with rain and storm-flung foam—
You are omitted from the travelogue
Of tourists, frightened at your hidden reef.
Alone, you wage your struggle with the sea:
The hills that brought a galleon to grief
Today are but a broken vertebrae
And tiny islets hold where once land stood;
The ocean pounds and undermines their face.
Your cliffs are strong, but could not if they would,
Gain back one granule from the breakers' race.
The change of death is on you as the roar
Of water pulls you to the dim sea floor.

III SAN NICOLAS

An ashen cloud surrounding a lone peak
Conceals a sandy citadel of wind;
Across the sifting dunes, no voices speak
Except the breeze in grasses dried and thinned.
As fog and darkness hide the flailing sea
That cuts the sandstone of storm-weakened cliffs,
The kitchen-maidens wait in reverie
For fire to welcome home the Indian skiffs.
But there is now no need to fend the gale
From flames to cook the abalone meat—
A century has rounded since the wail
Of one last woman echoed through wild wheat:
The pestle that her aged fingers used
Reposes in the cinders, time-abused.

PORTRAIT

Her path is plainly marked and lies ahead
Towards womanhood and rich maturity
And yet by choice she travels in its stead
The path of youth's naive simplicity.
The years in pity, leave their lightest touch
Lest they should cruelly dissipate her dreams,
And on her childish face is nothing much
As yet, to mark her other than she seems.

As girlhood's path is graven by her pace
While wayside flowers droop their dusty leaves,
She lifts unseeing eyes that cannot trace
The far horizon's ripely burnished sheaves;
And preens behind her chaste, white, prison bars,
She who has never held the dust of stars.

REVIEWS

STEVE'S PAL

By Sue Jurika Cecil

Amidst the plopping of little packages of peanuts into the laps of the audience by alluring, cheese-cakey vendors, and raucous shouts which greeted the flashily dressed Master of Ceremonies, "Steve's Pal," the new play presented by the Gold Coast Troupers of the First Theatre in Monterey, opened Friday night, February 18.

From the beginning, the audience felt it was a part of the play, as it enthusiastically applauded, hissed, booed and warned the players to beware, thoroughly enjoying its own impromptu remarks which may have upset the actors, considering the youth and inexperience of some of them. And though the first act seemed to drag, the play gathered momentum as the actors gained self confidence and assurance.

Lush and lovely Anne McElroy starred in the role of Alice Morgan, the heroine. She is a senior at Carmel Hi, and has brains, beauty and ability. She played her part with much delightful originality and freshness but she still needs a lot of training. Anyone who knows talented Ruth Marion McElroy could easily tell that the attractive Anne is her daughter as she unconsciously displayed many of her famous mother's mannerisms and facial expressions.

Darwin Law, playing the masculine lead of Steve Harding, felt his responsibility, tried hard and succeeded in putting on a good show as a truly authentic hero of the 90's, sincere and honest-as-the-day-is-bright.

A 16-year-old Carmel Hi youth with exceptional talent, Jim Jensen in the role of Richard Ramsdell, the ungrateful, rascally secretary, shows great promise for the professional career which is his ambition. This amazing, determined boy rises at six each morning to do his school homework, attends classes all day, helps in his family's store after school, and then rehearses or acts in plays until midnight. He must have a tremendous well of energy, as well as determination, to keep up such a pace. His stage presence and poise are way beyond his years.

Sharing boos with Jim Jensen was Wayne Edwards, playing the part of John Raymond co-villain in the black plot to steal the ranch. It was very obvious that Wayne Edwards loved being a villain and had a lot of fun doing his part. There was much fine humor in his acting and he was a most likeable crook!

Harold Brown, as Dan Allerton, "Steve's Pal" played a most convincing role and one of the most appealing to the spectators. His flashing Pepsodent smile, and his skin which looked as scrubbed as a well-stained apple, his nasal twang and swaggering walk marked him as a real movie cowboy of the range, as well as the Horatio Alger loyal friend. From his first entrance, he had the sympathy of the audience.

Another good crook part was played by Stanley Butera, as Juan Sanchez, the Mexican ranch foreman, and everyone sat on the edge of his bench during the breathless duel-of-death fight in the dim light of the bunkhouse. At the end of the scene, the suspense had a humorous anti-climatic let-down when one of the actors on the stage waved a frantic hand for the curtain to be dropped!

Mary Green, in the "character" role of Pamela Morgan, the canny, outspoken sister and aunt, and Carmen Mercante, as Kitty Grayson, the scintillating, vivacious girl friend of the heroine, both put on smooth, polished professional performances. In the vernacular and popular jargon of the day, they were both "super" and deserve no end of praise. They both have loads of personality and are accomplished actresses.

Bob Ruddy, as the distinguished, exceedingly honorable and guileless Sam Morgan played

CHURCH OF THE WAYFARER

"The White Cliffs of Dover" will be the sermon theme by Dr. James E. Crowther on Sunday morning at the Church of the Wayfarer. Brotherhood Week, of which next Sunday is the climax, is concerned chiefly with the right understanding between the various races and religions within our national borders, a subject that has been considered from various angles in recent weeks in the Church of the Wayfarer. An equally important subject is the right understanding between British and American peoples. This subject will be presented by an interpretation of "The White Cliffs," a classic written by Alice Duer Miller. The Church service is at eleven. Visitors are cordially invited.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

In all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, a Lesson-Sermon will be read Sunday, February 27, on the subject "Christ Jesus." The Golden Text will be: "No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him," (John 1: 18).

Bible selections will include the following passage from Hebrew 1: 1, 2: "God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets, Hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds."

A passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included, which reads as follows: "Jesus was the highest human concept of the perfect man. He was inseparable from Christ, the Messiah,—the divine idea of God outside the flesh. This enabled Jesus to demonstrate his control over matter," (p. 482).

SUNSET SCHOOL NOTES

Book Drive

Sunset school is having a book drive. This drive will last from February 15th to March 15th. The books will be for the armed forces. The books should have reading in them that will interest and amuse the service people every where.

If you have any books you are willing to give up please bring them to Sunset school. They will be greatly appreciated.

Pan's Pipes

Pan loved a beautiful nymph called Syrinx, but every time he tried to tell her she ran off. Her fear wasn't so strange however, as Pan was half goat and half man. One time when he was trying to catch her she leaped into the river. Pan grabbed her but she turned into a lot of reeds. Pan cut them to unequal lengths and bound them together. He found he could play a tune on them, thus he invented the Syrinx. He named this instrument after his lost sweetheart. Pan, although adored, was feared. One time the temple at Delphi was being attacked by a company from Gaul. All of a sudden they ran away in fear. They were frightened (it is said) because of Pan. That is where we get our word "pan-ic."

The Junior Red Cross at Sunset school has a number of things to do this spring.

One job is to collect toys for the Eskimo children for Christmas gifts. You may think this queer but only one boat a year goes up to the far north. This boat leaves in June.

We are also trying to collect more crossword puzzles, jig-saw puzzles and games for the service camps. We would like to have small pocket games for the men over seas.

If you have games to share, please send them to Sunset school.

Red Cross Chairman

Different Kinds of Ink

The first kind of ink was the juice of plants or blood from animals. These faded or dried away too easily so gum resin was added. This made an ink that was not easy to blot but it did not fade so soon. Ink made from lampblack was made in China about 2600 B.C. The Romans made ink from the coloring matter found in the cuttle fish. The India inks used today are the only true black inks. They are made from much the same materials as the lampblack ink used in China over four thousand years ago.

Visiting Lecturer

Pat Casey, an eighth grade boy, came down to Sunset school last week and dissected a pig's eye for us. We were very much interested in what he told us and we are all looking forward to working in the nice high school laboratory next year.

Mrs. Mary Green, custodian of the old Custom House in Monterey, and her daughter, Barbara came to Sunset school to show some beautiful colored moving pictures that they took on their last trip to Mexico. Both seventh grades and Mrs. Ninneman's third grade enjoyed the pictures and Mrs. Green's talk.

A Good Book

I am reading a book called, "Plow Penny Mystery." One day Connie went out to feed the horses and the goat. The goat was gone and she wondered where he could be. That night they were going to a lodge to eat supper and she couldn't go until she had found the goat. She had to run and run up the hill, but she finally found him. His chain had become caught on a log.

One day I was playing in our yard. Then I thought I would climb a big tree that is in back of our house and down I fell in the poison oak. That night I could not sleep.

My Father

My father was at Attu. He was at Kiska. Then he went to Hawaii. Now he is in the Marshall Islands. I heard him over the radio five times. And I saw a clipping in the paper about him.

The Special Town Meeting

Our room is going to give an operetta on Friday, March 3, 1944. The name of the operetta is "The Special Town Meeting." The main characters are: Moderator, Jon Stark; Caleb, Jimmy Wurman; Amos, Fritz Westerhout; Miss Wick; Freeda Ruth Gunn; Constable, Luis Wolter; Town Clerk, Jan Van Niel.

We are having fun learning the songs and we all hope it will be a good operetta.

Askew Quashes Crepe Rumor; Council Made No Statement to Him

Last rites for two sea lions washed up on the beach were in charge of Street Superintendent William L. Askew and his "crew" of two men, bringing the total number of interments presided over by Superintendent Askew to three in the past two months. In December he and he "crew" laid Pal, the town dog to rest.

"But the rumor that the city council is going to furnish us with crepe arm bands to wear on these solemn occasions so that citizens will know when we are acting as the street department and when we are functioning as a burial squad is without foundation," Askew told the Pine Cone-Cymbal yesterday. The city council has made no official statements to me in regard to crepe."

Other little deeds of mercy credited to the street department last month were the hauling of paper collected in the high school and Sunset drive over to Monterey, and the cleaning up of the bins in the post office lot.

In addition to the above extra curricula activities, the department performed its routine duties such as the weekly street sweeping, cleaning out of storm drains, and work for the Sanitary District for which the District compensates the city.

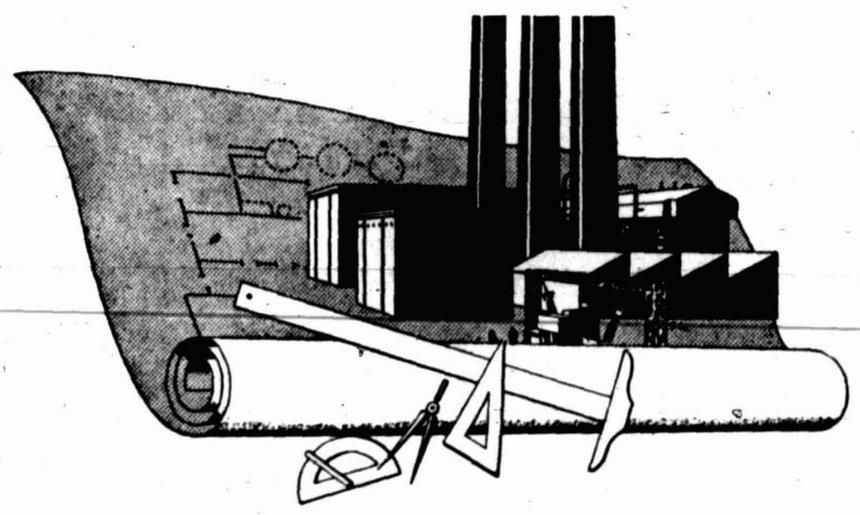
Electric Power Meets Wartime Needs



Planned for Peacetime Progress
READY FOR WAR DEMANDS

PLANNING AHEAD for customers of this company is a job that is never finished. It is always on the drafting boards, on the blue prints and with engineers and construction men.

When the biggest job of all came along—A Nation at War—then the results of foresight and planning were tested. To supply the needs of "all-out" war production with a speed and scope never equalled before, called for Peak Power from this company. And every call for electricity from war industries and the military forces has been met promptly and in full.

Like the logistics of army supply, an electric system must also have carefully planned sources of supply, strategically located, together with available reserves. Thus this company has 64 electric plants with interconnected switch-over facilities serving Northern and Central California. Among these 64 powerhouses are 13 steam power plants to supplement the electric load on its hydro power plants. One big dam, or one big powerhouse or two, could not dependably supply the demands of progressive California.

We ask the continued cooperation of all customers to conserve and save electricity, because military and war industry needs come first.

Presidio Chapel Wedding

Miss Frances Lillyblad was married to Corporal Roy Lee Romey in a ceremony performed by Chaplain Trevitt in the Monterey Presidio Chapel at four p.m. on Sunday, February 20. Before an altar decorated with palms and white lilies, the bride, attired in a gold wool suit with white accessories and bronze orchids, was given in marriage by Colonel J. P. Crawford. Miss Barbara Curtis of Carmel attended as maid of honor, wearing a navy blue suit and corsage of gardenias. Best man was the groom's twin brother, Gordon Romey, Jr., of San Francisco. Ushers were Captain William Ellis and Sergeant Eugene Demnisl. Mrs. H. T. McGuigan, who accompanied the bride's mother here from Red Wing, Minnesota, for the wedding, was soloist for the occasion and sang Guy de Hardelot's "Because."

Following the ceremony, a reception, attended by over a hundred guests, was held at Del Monte Lodge. Among those who came down from San Francisco to be present were Lieutenant Commander and Mrs. Ed H. Green and Captain and Mrs. Albert Marshall, formerly of Red Wing, Minnesota and old friends of the bride's family.

Corporal and Mrs. Romey departed after the reception for a week's honeymoon in Yosemite, the bride wearing a going-away ensemble of brown and yellow wool with brown accessories and her bronze bridal orchids. Upon their return the young couple will live in Carmel.

The new Mrs. Romey is the daughter of Mrs. C. E. Lillyblad of Red Wing, Minn. and the late Mr. Lillyblad, and a graduate of Stanford University, where she and her bridesmaid, Miss Barbara Curtis, were classmates. She came to make her home in Carmel two years ago and has been serving as a technician at the Monterey Presidio.

Corporal Romey, now stationed at the Presidio, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Romey of San Francisco.

New Maxine Albro Murals

A striking combination of early California atmosphere and coloring and whimsical Victorian decoration has been achieved by the new Maxine Albro murals and the furnishings planned by Helen Cleaves for the Mission Inn cocktail room and its adjoining ladies' lounge. Against a gay, bright back ground of pink walls, blue ceiling and Mexican red wainscoating, Maxine Albro has painted for the larger room four delightful panels in the form of old-fashioned portrait studies, with their frames amusingly draped and embellished, representing the be-parasoled and wasp-waisted belles of a bygone period, attended by side-burned dandies in choker collars and checkered trousers. For the smaller lounge, with its predominance of Van Gogh yellow, its fluffy white window curtains and tables decorated with floral designs, Miss Albro has painted a mural panel containing the figures of two Mexican girls in their bright pink skirts and distinctive white head dresses.

her color is always clear and transparent.

John O'Shea's compositions are moody and intricate. His bird painted on rice paper in Chinese style is the ultimate in bird personality. The charm of this creature is set by a technical virtuosity which will maintain it permanently. This is a very good example of a painting which will give increasing pleasure with time. The more you look at it, the more you like it.

So many people have gushed over Ellen Brown's dog portraits that they must be mentioned. They are terribly cute, to say the least. Dog lovers will yearn over them and wish to have similar portraits of their own dogs. As an interpreter of dogdom, Miss Brown rings the bell. The limpid eyes and wistful doggy expression plead for a kind word and a pat on the head. If there were a demand for pin-up dogs, these would fill the bill.

It is disappointing not to see any Armin Hansen's work in this show. His lusciousness of color always gives the reviewer a chance to be enthusiastic. But Marjorie Doolittle's flower piece is a color feast and beautifully constructed too. It has delicacy without fussiness, a rare achievement in still life or flower studies in water color or transparent oil washes.

Florence True's misty orchard deserves quite a bit of attention. In water color it is always desirable to keep a wet look to the washes as they are when first put on. It is a difficult stunt but a "must" for a really first rate water color. All of the front ranking water colorists have this characteristic. And Miss True does it in this little painting. Let's hope that she shows us more of the same thing.

The pastels shown have the charm of the medium, but pastel requires a fundamental skill in drawing as a basis for the pearly effects. And too often the pastelist relies on the lushness of the medium for his interpretive plan and leaves out basic structure. Charlotte Morgan's drawing of a head is strong and competent. It would be interesting to see how she would develop in it color.

Other exhibiting artists besides those mentioned above are Margaret Levick, William Watts, Kay Rodgers, Marjory Pegram, Harold Wagner, M. De Neal Morgan, Cecelia Seymour. The exhibit of oils in the large gallery will also run until March fifteenth. Gallery hours are 2 to 5 p.m. every day except Monday.

a difficult part very well and with fine understanding, as did Phyllis Setzer, as the perky, but prim little maid.

The fact that there was a prompter behind the scenes was not a secret kept from the audience and some of the pauses were almost embarrassingly long as cues were not taken up and acted upon.

The first night is often the poorest performance. As time goes on, and the players become accustomed to that dark mass of Alice in Wonderland faces, the tightened throats relax and open up so the voices can be heard. The lines and cues become second nature and roll smoothly off the tongue like the proverbial honey.

In spite of the fact that the audience was subdued at times during the play itself, it really enjoyed itself during the olio which followed. Phyllis Setzer had her moment as the seductive snake charmer whose snakes and abbreviated, sequined costume won accolades of wolf calls! Pamela Morgan was grand as the defiant, haranguing feminist who was finally dragged back to woman's place (i.e. "home") by her meek-appearing little husband. Carmen Mercante was a dream of loveliness in her golden yellow tulle costume, as the circus bareback rider, the sunshiny color enhancing her dark, glamorous beauty. The barroom scene drew a lot of laughs, and the dance of the cross-eyed mule, with Carmen Mercante and Jim Jensen, was also a very well-received number. The cowboy guitar player, Harold Brown, received an encore, his shyness and simplicity of manner appealing to the listeners.

If the play seemed a little long, the olio was only too short and Lily, the Dancing Cow, played by Jim Schaar, really stole the show in the finale. The delighted spectators wanted more of her.

Beverley Wright did a splendid job with the settings, every detail was authentic, making the atmosphere of the play; and as usual, Rhoda Johnson's costuming was perfect. Much credit, though few audiences realize it, goes to those behind the scenes, the electricians, the stage manager, the costumers, the make-up people, whose cooperation and efforts make a background for the actors. The musician, whose smooth and rhythmic rendition of the gay, lilting ditties makes stamping, floor-pounders of the audience also does a terrific amount to create the proper, carefree atmosphere, so essential to the melodrama.

Matilda Ewig

Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. on Thursday in the Dorney Funeral Home in Monterey for Mrs. Matilda Ewig, whose death occurred on her 79th birthday, February 22, at the San Antonio street home of her son, Mr. E. H. Ewig.

A native of San Francisco, where she spent all but the past 15 years of her life, Mrs. Ewig came in 1929 to live in Carmel with her son and daughter-in-law. Death came in her sleep on Tuesday after an illness of three days.

Surviving are her son and two grandsons: Gordon Ewig, now studying at Columbia University for his commission in the U. S. Navy and Stanley Ewig, a student at Carmel high school.
